POLITICAL SUGGESTIONS.

Two interesting suggestions looking toward addition to the political system of the United States have recently been made. Asked for his ideas as to the appropriate activity of a defeated candidate for President, ex-Governor Smith suggested that he might become a United States Senator at large and thus continue to represent his following. In the last instance amounting to fifteen million voters—and the policies he had advocated, holding that so huge a minority of voters should not lack representation in the nation's forum. The other and more direct suggestion comes from Senator George of Georgia, who has advanced the proposal of an attorney for the consumers who will be employed by the government to represent the public in all tariff matters.

The latter proposition, owing to the tariff discussion at the moment, has attracted more attention. A single spokesman for the inarticulate millions of consumers might not be able to accomplish much in opposition to the powerful high-tariff lobbies so long established at Washington, but, as a tariff-reform newspaper suggests, even "the tiniest bit of assistance" would be welcomed by the said inarticulate millions "who never get a hearing before the Senate and House committees when a new tariff measure is under consideration and are never represented before the Tariff Committee." Such a single spokesman for the consumers could at least get the other side of the case into the record and bring to public attention tariff inequalities which otherwise would escape notice. At present the appeals to the Tariff Commission are too one-sided. Both the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Trade Commission hear both sides, and the same ought to be true at every hearing before the Tariff Commission.

PARADOX IN AN AGE OF YOUTH.

When it is argued that this is definitely an age of young men, in politics and law as well as in business, the United States Supreme Court—in a sense the highest governing power in the land because it is the final court of appeal—seems to be altogether overlooked. When that great Court assembled for its annual term on October 7 the remarkable fact was noted that it is composed of "nine men whose combined ages exceed six centuries and whose average age lacks just one year of threescore and ten." The obvious explanation of the paradox in an "age of youth" is that the Justices become celebrated jurists of advanced years before they are appointed. And yet this in itself may be described as a modern tendency, for President Washington appointed a young man under thirty on the Supreme Court.

The great age of so many of the Justices has been cited in objection to the Supreme Court's vast power of decision as to the constitutionality of legislative enactments, it being contended that their outlook is not sufficiently modern, their active lives having been spent and their opinions fixed in another generation. But here again we come upon a curious paradox. Of all the members of the Court, the two oldest—Brandeis, 73, and Holmes, 88—have revealed the most modern outlook. Justice Holmes' dissenting opinion in the Schwimmer case, for example, not only displayed superb clarity of reasoning but was as modern in spirit as it would have been if he were still in the early forties. The two oldest Justices have made something like a double paradox of this court of old men in an age of youth.

The heavyweight boxing title, as the world probably knows, has been looking for a claimant since it was relinquished by Gene Tunney. Jack Sharkey of Boston signifies his willingness to accept it. According to a number of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, who professes to be in the confidence of that celebrated boxer, Sharkey, it awarded the chamampionship, would be willing to defend it within three months, and every six months thereafter as long as he held the honor. Whether Sharkey is the logical man for the fighting crown is a matter for the experts to decide. But whoever gets it, the conditions suggested look reasonable. In view of the honors and emoluments of the office, it may well be that it seems only fair to insist that a champion should champion, instead of growing rich in ease and security, on vaudeville and movie contracts.

There was some fear felt in various quarters that Premier MacDonald, on his visit to Washington, would not be adequately taken care of. But fortunately such a pessimistic view was groundless. The estimable Second Lady of the Land hurried back from her social sojourn in Kansas and proceeded to do her duty. Everybody might just as well understand that no social duty will go undone while Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann is first mate of the social ship of state. So that's that. But with our minds set free from fear that in Mrs. Gann's absence some social boob would use the wrong fork at a state dinner, or say "Pleased to meetche" to Miss Isabel, or shake hands with a footman, some of us have been sort of wondering about other aspects of the situation.

King Edward VII predicted that his grandson, the present Prince of Wales, would be the last King of Great Britain. As the Prince seems determined to remain a bachelor the prediction may be substantiated by the event, but there would appear to be no chance of escape for the popular Prince himself. He will have to serve, although it has been reported that he really does not wish to be a King.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

INTESTINAL SURGERY.

I often speak about Nature's care of us in spite of some of the foolish things we do. Also of how Nature is always just ahead of our needs. Every organ in the body is capable of doing much more work than is ordinarily required of it, and when anything extraordinary is required that body of yours is usually able to withstand it. Thus you may live with just one lung or kidney, or about half the liver, and so forth.

And now we read of the surgical removal of almost half of the small intestine. As you know it is into the small intestine that the stomach empties the food after it has churned it for two to four hours, mixing it with the stomach digestive juice. Just after leaving the stomach the food is met in the small intestine by those other two digestive juices—the pancreatic juice from the pancreas, and the bile from the liver. After being mixed with these juices it is ready to be absorbed into the blood. Now in order that it will have plenty of time to be absorbed it has to travel a course of twenty feet, up and down little hills and valleys the surface of which is covered with little projections which select and absorb the food into the blood stream.

And yet, as Dr. A. G. Brendler, Charlotte, N. C., reports a case in which he removed 9 1/2 feet of the small intestine, and made a side-to-side junction of the small intestine with the large intestine. Liquids were given for the first four days, and a soft diet for the remainder of the three weeks in the hospital. The patient returned for examination in three months, having eaten, after six weeks, practically a full diet. His weight had increased from 102 to 172 pounds.

Now why do I write about this? Simply to show that you and I were given a small intestine because it was expected that we would use all the huge muscles covering the body. This would mean that we would need plenty of food. Further that food would have a large amount of material that would be slow in getting absorbed, and the long small intestine would give plenty of surface for this purpose.

Nowadays we eat food that is free from much of this material and we do not do much hard physical work. Hence it is possible to get along with about half the usual length of small intestine.

AN ACCIDENT

HENDERSON, holding the reins of Barbara's horse, was leaning close to her.
 "Just one kiss," he was saying.
 Through Barbara's mind flashed memories of how trifling a kiss had seemed to her before, something easier to give than refuse. But in the stillness of these English woods, Barbara felt she could not continue that sort of thing now she had Ray.

But she knew it would be hopeless to explain this to Henderson. Instead, she relied upon humor. "Don't ask me to become sentimental in the daylight, Henry," she chided him. "Let's push on. The others must be miles ahead at ready."

 He did not press his point, but she knew by his moody silence that he was peevish about it. Let him be unpleasant about it if he wanted to!

Now they were out in the woods, approaching a mill stream. As she made towards it, Henderson said: "Don't attempt to jump it, Barbara. It's wider than it appears."

The dictatorial note in his voice annoyed her.
 "Poof, poof," she laughed over her shoulder. "If you can make it—I guess I can, too."

And with that, in a spirit of bravado, she cracked her whip and brought it down on the horse's flank, urging it forward.

Down the grassy bank it plunged, tossing its head and quivering its eagerness as it gathered force for the spring. A moment—and it was over—but in making the opposite bank its hoofs slipped in the mud and it fell, bringing Barbara to the ground.

At first she appeared unharmed by the fall, but when she tried to rise, she discovered that she had twisted her ankle. She tried to laugh about it, assuring the man that it was of no consequence. Henderson picked her up in his arms and set her on her horse.

"Sure it doesn't hurt too much?" said the man solicitously.
 "Sure," she assured him. But, of course, it did hurt.

It felt as though red hot pokers were being jabbed continuously into her ankle and she found herself longing for Ray.

She wanted Ray to fuss over her, to pet her and to tell her how inordinately brave she was being. She kept urging her horse on impatient to be back in her mind's eye she could see Ray rushing forward to take her down off her horse after which he would carry her up the wide staircase and into their bedroom.

The groom was waiting to meet them. But nowhere could she see Ray and it was Henderson finally who carried her into the hall.

"Is Mr. Lowther upstairs?" she asked the butler.
 The man raised his eyebrows. "No, ma'am. He caught the four o'clock train to London." And then in reply to Henderson's startled exclamation, "He said it was urgent business." A telegram came for him just before noon.
 Barbara relaxed limp in Henderson's arms, too stupefied at that moment to speak. Henderson to her. What nonsense!

 But, with the realization that the other guests were looking at her expectantly, she managed to say, "The wire came, and it was very disappointing. How very annoying."

"Sporting the way she took it," Henderson remarked later to the major. "I'll bet my last penny that it was as much of a shock to her as it was to the rest of us!"

"Poor little lady," said the major with some sentiment as he pulled at his moustache. "She ought to have had more sense than to marry a musician. What can one expect of a fellow who spends his life tooting a blasted horn?"

Upstairs in her room a white, bedraggled Barbara was crumpling a sheet of paper into a little hard ball in her hands. Across it Ray had scrawled in his large, staid writing:

"Barbara, dear one—
 'What I have done will make you feel awful. I'm going to make you feel awful. I'm leaving you for two or three days, but I'll be back in time to take you from this jolly house party, home again, as that dumbbell Major Perkins would say. You're got to trust me.'—My love."

"P. S.—I hope my services to Henderson. Tell him that King George called me up for a private audition, if you like."

Barbara hung the note furiously into the wastepaper basket, her cheeks burning with the intensity of her rage. How dare he treat her in that casual manner! So furious was she in that moment that she wanted to do something desperate: throw a vase through the window or break up every stick of furniture in that room.

Instead she flung herself down on the bed, burying her hot, muddy face in the pillow. Never, she told herself, could she feel the same towards him again! Never. She determined "to go straight back to the States and securing a divorce."

She raised her head abruptly, some one was knocking at the door. "Who's there?"

"It's Henry. I'm sending the maid up to look after you. Is there anything I can do for you myself?" Her answer was short and muffled.

"Nothing thanks."
 "Will you be able to come down to dinner tonight, Barbara?"

She was about to reply decisively in the negative when she stopped herself, remembering that, at all costs, she must keep her end up before the other guests. Her hazel eyes hardened until they seemed like pin points and she called back, with an attempt at gaiety:

"Of course I'm coming. I'm coming even if you have to carry me downstairs. I'll tell the world I am!"

She heard his footstep retreat along the corridor and then, although her features contracted with the pain of her ankle, she forced herself to get up, of the bed and limp about the room, as she made a feeble effort to change her clothing.

Seating herself at the vanity table, she muttered under her breath, "I'll show you, Ray. Lowther. You're not going to make a fool out of me a second time and get away with it! Never mind—I'm not going to sit around and hope for you! No, sir, I'll have a celebration. . . . I'll have the time of my life. . . ."

Strange that she started the celebration by suddenly leaving forward, her head in her arms, and weeping into tears.

Ray rose again and once more Barbara heard him whisper the story with tomorrow's chapter.

SHOKAN. Shokan, Oct. 14.—George Hogan, Sr., spent a few days visiting relatives in Kingston last week. Mrs. Wilhelmina Fuller and son of Mountain Laurel Lodge returned recently from an enjoyable motor trip to Canada.

Messrs. Duryea and Crane of the Kingston postoffice were business callers in the village last week. The water supply situation here remains practically unchanged. The summer's drought bids fair to become extended to well on in the fall and least. Meanwhile, householders are continuing the tedious program of hauling water from the city's reservoir or carrying the precious stuff from one of the few wells still in operation.

On October 16, 1888, a number of Olive Democrats journeyed to Kingston to hear the address of David B. Hill, Democratic candidate for governor. Mr. Hill carried Olive 18, and was successful in the state, though Benjamin Harrison, Republican, was elected to the presidency.

Sylvester Wells has invested in one of the 1929 Chevrolet coaches. Jacob V. Merrilow, former supervisor of Olive and now candidate for sheriff, called on some of his many friends here a few days ago. Mrs. Daniel Sampson left town last week for a trip to Kansas.

Despite the long, dry summer there have been very few forest fires in this vicinity. In former years a protracted dry spell was almost invariably accompanied by a succession of fires on the mountains, some of them calling for a deal of heroic effort on the part of local fire-fighters before the flames were got under control. In those days a fire in the woods generally made considerable headway before being located by someone who had the will to organize a gang of men to go battle with it. Now, the fire season seems always on the job, fully

WHY WE DO IT

Why Pain Is Sometimes Pleasurable

By MEHRAN K. THOMSON, Ph. D. Author of "The Springs of Human Action"

PAIN is usually unpleasant. Sometimes it is pleasurable. As an example of pleasurable pain recall the experience of poking a sore thumb in order to get the pain sensation. This and similar examples are merely exceptions which prove the rule that pain is unpleasant. If all pain were pleasant it would fail of its purpose which is to warn you of approaching danger.

Pleasant feelings usually accompany acts that are beneficial to the organism or at least are not injurious. Hence we seek to prolong these reactions. However, even a pleasant reaction may prove injurious if overdone. Again nature comes to the rescue by arousing pain sensations when any pleasant act is carried to excess and in this way she protects the organism.

But the question is, "How can any painful experience be pleasurable when to be so is to defeat the object of pain as a warning?" Here is one explanation: The sensation of pain arouses great resistance in the nervous pathways which is caused by a strong nervous current going through a poorly organized nervous arc. A strong nervous current will soon modify the nervous arc so as to diminish resistance. Now, when this resistance is diminishing, or has been diminished, the feeling becomes distinctly pleasurable, even though the intensity may be so great that it would harm the organism. It follows then that the exceptions are not really dangerous because they come at a time when the individual has already been sufficiently warned by the previous intensely unpleasant feeling. In fact, intense pain beyond the point of warning is more torture and serves no useful purpose.

Pain arises as a result of the activity of any organism when that activity becomes so great that it is injurious to the organism. Fatigue arises whenever a muscle has been used so hard and so long that further use would be injurious. Pain and fatigue make us quit using the muscle.

prepared to nip the incipient blaze, before it gets "a-roaring." A real estate change in Olive in 1884 was the purchase on October 14 by Abram Teas, from Emory Krom, of the Sahler mill property near the town of Rochester.

The Rev. and Mrs. Cady, of Kingston, spent a day at the Will Longyear cottage recently. Manager Burton Wheat has discontinued the moving picture shows in the village hall for the present. It is possible that the movies will be resumed later on in the fall, though Mr. Wheat has not definitely decided about that as yet. The attendance during the summer has been good, both residents of Shokan and the city guests having patronized and enjoyed them.

At the annual school meeting held in District No. 15 of Olive, on October 14, 1879, William H. Bush was elected trustee over William F. Hill by a majority of one vote. Mr. Bush, a wagonmaker, and Mr. Hill, who in after years became postmaster of Shokan, were next door neighbors, living along the Butterkill and Plank Road in the old village. The school meeting of '89 was an unusually stormy session, rivaling in that respect a meeting of the kind held in Shokan at a much more recent date.

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Tester, who have been managing the Stevens estate farm at Bokeville for the past year, have removed to New Canaan, Conn. Grant Every, who has been the assistant superintendent at the Stevens place, will have charge of the farming operations there in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson are spending a few days in Brooklyn. The Thompsons, who recently moved to Shokan, will take up their residence in the William Grossman boarding house upon their return. Mrs. Benish Klebe and daughter, of Kingston, called on relatives here one day recently.

Many of the old wells which used to line the boundaries of farms and fields in the Butterkill swamp section of the town are again exposed to the light of day, due to the gradual receding of the water in the concrete walls of the reservoir. Looking down from the vantage point of the hill back of the village, one can view this great expanse of land, completely denuded of plant life, stretching far out toward the highway and upward along the north side of the woods adjoining the south boundary.

Wealthy Recluse Is Victim of Mysterious Murder Rivalling Fiction.

SAINT PAUL, N. H.—The little village of Saint Paul, N. H., is thrilling with a murder mystery which rivals the weirdest tales of fiction. On July 2 A. R. Manby, wealthy and aged English reclusive, was found dead in the library of his 10-room home there, his body clad in a nightgown and his severed head in a nearby room.

Manby had lived alone in this big house, well furnished and adorned with valuable oriental rugs and old treasures, with two ferocious police dogs as his only companions. One lived in the house with him, the other he kept chained at the main entrance. Manby for years had lived in fear of his life.

Manby was last seen alive on June 30, but entries in a diary he kept indicated that he was still alive the following day. On July 3 the police were notified by persons whose names are withheld that he had not been seen for several days and that there was reason to believe he was dead. An officer entered the house, after killing the dog at the door, to find the man's dead body.

Natural Death, First Verdict.
A coroner's jury decided that Manby had met his death from natural causes and that the second dog had mauled the body and bitten through the spine, carrying the head into the other room. Manby was buried at once.

Rumors persisted, however, that Manby had been murdered, and state officials began an investigation, placing the task in the hands of Henri Martin, a skilled French detective who has been living in the West for the last two years because of his wife's ill health.

Acting on the evidence Martin secured, the body of Manby was exhumed and it was found that he had been murdered with a sawed-off shotgun, which had blown away his right jaw. The murderer had then covered the head, picked out all the gunshot from the chest and head and placed the head in the room where it was found.

A Glimmer Background.
In the next few days evidence was discovered which forms the background for this amazing murder.

In 1865 a man named Stone discovered a mine in Colfax county which he named the Mystic mine. Two years later he met a man named Ferguson, with whom he formed a partnership, and some one was taken from the claim. In 1878 other prospectors struck a claim five miles distant, which became the world famous Antec mine, one of the richest gold mines in the world.

Soon after its discovery a third man appeared. He was known as a prospector and in the region was supposed to be a "high grader," a man who while working on a property appropriates to himself gold dust and nuggets. He is rumored to have reached some sort of an understanding with Stone and Ferguson and gone to work at the Antec claim. From his advent the Mystic began showing better results and the man became wealthy.

Stone First to Vanish.
In 1882 Stone disappeared and it was reported that he had been murdered. In 1883 Manby appeared in the picture. He was a promoter, interested in gold properties throughout the West and in Mexico. He entered partnership with Ferguson and another man, and the firm became more and more prosperous. It is now claimed that for years there was systematic "high grading" in connection with the working of the Antec property.

The second man disappeared in 1897 and reappeared in 1901, shortly thereafter disappearing for good. Ferguson soon began to have hallucinations, which, it was said, were supplied by some one interested in his destruction. He heard noises at his windows, heard his dead partner's voice, even claimed he had seen his ghost. The result was that Ferguson went mad and was confined at Las Vegas, where he recently died. This left only Manby and Ferguson's daughter, Teresta, interested in the Mystic mine.

Between the time Manby was buried and the investigations started, his beautiful home was stripped of all its treasures, rugs, furniture, and $50,000 in gold and dust which he was known to have concealed around the building was removed.

LOS ANGELES—Edward M. Murphy, twenty-four, charged with being a highwayman, addressed himself to Judge Reuben Schmidt the other day as follows:

That's why I'm right here pleading guilty. I wanted a regular trial so that my buddies would know I made them out of the works. Let's go."

"I'll accommodate you," said Judge Schmidt. He sentenced the youth to San Quentin for seven years to life. It was charged that Murphy robbed a tailor shop at the corner of a gas.

ROSENDALE HOME SERVICE CLASS ON THURSDAY.

The next home service lesson, the second in the fall series offered by the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, will feature Hal-lowe'en Novelties—a subject with an attraction all its own—bringing a wealth of thrills and fun, whose origin, centuries ago, was in a maze of superstitious beliefs that were part and parcel of every day life.

The regular class will be conducted by Miss Elizabeth R. Plank, home service director for the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, October 17, in the Rosendale office. These classes are held every other Thursday afternoon and the ladies of the community and vicinity are invited to attend.

In addition to refreshments with bewitching names and tasty ingredients, the lesson will include a short history of Hallowe'en and a table decoration with black cats and festive lights to add still more enchantment to Hallowe'en rites.

Among the recipes which will be demonstrated and included on the printed copies given to each member of the class are: Witch's goo, Hallowe'en twists to old favorites, mystery sandwich rolls, toasted pumpkin frosting and goblin salad. These dishes with their mysterious names have more than one claim to fame. They are as good to the taste as they are intriguing to the ear and are prepared in fancy forms and shapes to represent hobgoblins, cats, witches and other traditional Hallowe'en motifs.

Electrolytic Decomposition!

NOTHING terrible about "electrolytic decomposition." It simply means the "evaporation" of water from your automobile battery. It's a natural process that must take place in any healthy battery.

But—and here's the point—unless the water lost in the air is replaced every ten days or two weeks, only part of the full power of the battery is available. Regular visits to our service station for water, and cleaning and tightening of the terminals, will keep it in a healthy condition.

We are proud of our reputation as battery experts—that's why we sell the dependable and long-lived Exide, made by The Electric Storage Battery Co., the world's largest manufacturers of storage batteries for every purpose.

GAS HUGGIES—Giving the Boys a Shake.

"It's going like wildfire . . . Socony Special plus Ethyl"

THIS is the story the dealer tells. In the six weeks that Socony Special plus Ethyl has been on the market, sales have been climbing rapidly: ten . . . fifteen . . . twenty . . . twenty-five . . . thirty per cent higher. From Maine to Long Island, from Buffalo to Boston, the report is the same: "Socony Special plus Ethyl is going like wildfire."

Here are the reasons: Socony Special always was a superior high-compression premium gasoline. Then we did the one thing we could do to make it better. We added Ethyl fluid—at no extra cost to you—making the first high-compression gasoline plus Ethyl ever offered in these parts.

The result is just about perfection. Read some of the comments on Socony Special plus Ethyl:

"A few days ago, while on a trip through northern New York, I had a good opportunity to give Socony Special plus Ethyl a good trial. When I left home, the tank was full of ordinary gasoline. Before I started back, I filled up with your new Special. I noticed a big difference. The motor ran much more smoothly, had more power and speed and a quicker pick-up. On this trip I used a full tank going north, while I had nearly two gallons of Special left when I reached home."

"It is not necessary to retune the spark on any of the hills in this section with Socony Special plus Ethyl."

"The clean condition of my spark plugs after 2,000 miles of driving is a clear indication of complete combustion in the cylinders."

"I have been driving one of the new Model A Fords for some time, buying my gasoline at the first convenient pump that would sell it to me at the lowest price. In course of time the car developed a severe knock on the slightest grade and I was just about to have it pulled down for thorough overhauling when your representative suggested I try Socony Special plus Ethyl before going to this expense. Before the first tankful was used, my car was taking the hills without the slightest knock and is now operating as quietly and smoothly as it was when I first bought it."

"To me Socony Special plus Ethyl is the best yet. I have used other brands since they have been on the market, but Socony Special seems to have the better pick-up and more real power. Personally I am pleased that you have added this fuel to your other dependable products."

Laziness Just Hunger

Laziness among farm workers in the Philippines led to an investigation of this supposed moral disorder, which turned out to be purely physical in many cases. It was found that a daily diet thought to be sufficient was resulting in undernourishment. An improved diet quickly stimulated the vitality of the toilers and their working capacity was greatly increased.

Local Hospitals Are Approved

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Production of health life automobiles or radios, its been speeded up 100 per cent in the past decade. Greater skill and better equipment have so greatly increased the efficiency of the plants devoted to restoring human health that the average hospital bed today is turning out three patients per month, as compared to one and one-half ten years ago.

Statistical evidence of this improvement in hospital facilities and results was presented today in a report on hospital standardization made at the opening of the nineteenth annual Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons. In connection with the report, Dr. Franklin H. Martin, president of the surgeons' association, announced a list of approximately 2,000 hospitals in the United States and Canada which have been found to measure up to the college's requirements for safe and efficient hospitals.

The hospital report, which represents one of the chief functions of the college, reveals that 55 per cent of the hospitals of 100 beds or over now measure up to the standards required by the association. About 65 per cent of the 50 to 100 bed institutions are on the approved list, and 20 per cent of those with less than 50 beds. All government hospitals meet the requirements.

The mortality rate in hospitals, now averaging 3.5 per cent, has also been cut in two in the past decade. Hospital standardization with the annual publication of the approved list for the guidance and benefit of the public was begun by the American College of Surgeons twelve years ago. Among other improvements there has resulted a reduction in fee-splitting by doctors, a practice vigorously combatted by the college. The requirements for hospitals are:

A modern physical plant, free from hazards, with a competent governing body.

An efficient, chief executive officer or superintendent with a competent personnel.

An organized medical staff of qualified physicians and surgeons who hold regular meetings to review and evaluate the professional work of the hospital.

A thorough system for recording conditions, treatment and progress of each patient.

Acceptable diagnostic and therapeutic facilities.

Definite evidence that the staff members are opposed to fee-splitting or payment of commissions by surgeons and patients referred to them.

The Benedictine Hospital, capacity 100, and the Kingston Hospital, capacity 135, are both fully approved.

The witness had been cautioned to give more precise answers.

"We don't want your opinion of the question," the judge told him. "We want it answered—that's all."

"You drive a wagon?" asked the prosecuting attorney.

"No, sir; I do not," was the decided reply.

"Why, sir, did you not tell my learned friend but a moment ago that you did?"

"No, sir; I did not."

"Now, I put it to you, my man, on your oath. Do you drive a wagon?"

"No, sir."

"Then what is your occupation?" asked the states' attorney in desperation.

"I drive a horse," was the reply.

COMFORT FOR WOMEN WHO DRIVE

Thousands of women are finding in Oldsmobile those priceless elements of driving comfort so necessary to pleasure and ease of mind in motoring.

There's Oldsmobile's driver's seat, for example... adjustable down to the fraction of an inch, to assure just the right reach to pedals and steering wheel! And a steering wheel that's movable to the exact position for perfect arm comfort and free vision. Clutch and brake pedals are comfortable to operate both because their action is easy and because they are faced with cushions of rubber, assuring a firm "grip."

Gear changing in Oldsmobile is accomplished quickly and quietly... with the tips of the fingers. And the lightest touch on the steering wheel assures perfect control.

Too, Oldsmobile's large, flat, pad-type accelerator enables the driver to accelerate smoothly and confidently... even when high-heeled shoes are worn. Positive-acting four-wheel brakes give a feeling of absolute security.

These splendid performance abilities, combined with the smartness and luxury of Fisher coachwork, round out a motor car that stands, in many respects, as an acknowledgment to the desires and needs of the thousands of women who today drive their own automobiles.

Come in today and let us explain all of Oldsmobile's fine car features of driving comfort. Drive one of these beautiful cars and judge its qualities for yourself. You will know then why so many women are selecting Oldsmobile as the family car, or the car for their own personal use.

And then, in addition to all these features, there is Oldsmobile's famous 62-horsepower engine, assuring a smooth, quiet flow of power for nimble threading of traffic or effortless hill climbing.

Stomach Pains Were Almost Unbearable Declares This Lady

Also Suffered For Years From Kidney Disorders, Bilious Attacks, Constipation and Nervousness.

"For the past thirteen years, I have been in poor health and the discouraging part of it was, there just seemed to be no help for me," said Mrs. George Van Kleeck, Samsonville, N. Y., in a recent interview.

"The pains of indigestion through my stomach were at times almost unbearable. My kidneys were in a weakened condition. I'd get sick bilious attacks and I suffered from high blood pressure. I was a chronic victim to constipation and my nerves were all on edge and my entire system was so rundown that I felt tired and worn out all of the time."

"After I failed to get any relief from other medicines, I started using the Nu-Erb and since then I have been gradually improving until now, my former troubles have all been relieved. I scarcely ever have any indigestion. My kidneys are apparently stronger than they have been for many years and this splendid medicine has also relieved the biliousness, high blood pressure and strengthened my nerves so that I have practically no trouble in that way. My bowels are acting regularly and my entire system has improved in every way. I will always be glad to recommend this Nu-Erb to anybody because of what it has done for me."

Nu-Erb is the ideal system tonic and regulator. It corrects digestive disorders, strengthens weak kidneys, quiets the nerves, rouses a lazy liver to full action, relieves constipation and puts a stop to headaches, dizziness, biliousness, rheumatism and neuritis.

McKibbin Drug Store, 312 Wall St., is headquarters in Kingston for Dr. French's Nu-Erb. Go see the Nu-Erb man now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

16-YEAR OLD BANDIT WAS TOO GREEN

New York, Oct. 15 (AP).—Greed proved the undoing of a 16-year-old holding man who could not stay after a fair-armed haul. As a result he was beaten unconscious by his victims and arrested, while his four pals were at liberty with $1,500 in cash and considerable jewelry.

About fifty men and women in a lower east side cabaret were lined up and robbed by the five men. After two of the patrons had been knocked unconscious, four of the robbers fled. Peter Spooner, however, latched to a diamond bracelet from a woman and suddenly realized the robbery, but suddenly realized he was alone with his victims. They realized it at about the same time. When the police arrived Spooner was unconscious on the floor, beaten down under a barrage of chairs and dishes.

Why shouldn't a kitchen sink hold water without the use of a pan—can you tell us?

The ultra-modern Kohler Sinks that we sell do hold water. They have a remarkable new improvement, the Duostrainer, to keep the water in when you want it and let it out with a rush when you are through. An added convenience is a removable strainer cup which catches debris and lifts out for easy emptying.

The Duostrainer is only one big new efficiency feature of Kohler Sinks. Come in and let us tell you about the others and show you the Kohler fixtures in color.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Rome—Mussolini is a bit partial to men of 11. Two of his cabinet are of that age and he has decided on the election of Professor Giuseppe Tucci of the University of Rome to the Royal Academy. The professor, also 26, is a phenom with a profound knowledge of twelve languages.

Jersey City—Dr. Howard Murray, who long has been getting X-ray treatment to victims of cancer, must have his left hand amputated.

Dallas—Forest E. Cole will knock flies all the way to Philadelphia if he pays a bet on the world series.

New York—Master Sergeant Henry Sonneberg has been retired with ceremony from the army after recruiting 10,000 men. He served 30 years in three wars with much duty ashore at city recruiting offices.

London—In the words of George Bernard Shaw, as dramatist, our present parliamentary system can do more to the work of a modern state than Julius Caesar's gallies could do the work of a modern engine.

Tokyo—College boys cut up here in celebration of athletic victories like they do in the U. S. A. A safe advertiser: "Patronage of students is humbly and respectfully declined." Nights after university baseball games all the cafes on the Ginza, the capital's great White Way, hire large forces of private guards.

London—Ambassador Dawes is a diplomat even in music. A melody for cello and piano forte he composed years ago has been played at a concert. One critic describes it as diplomatically written.

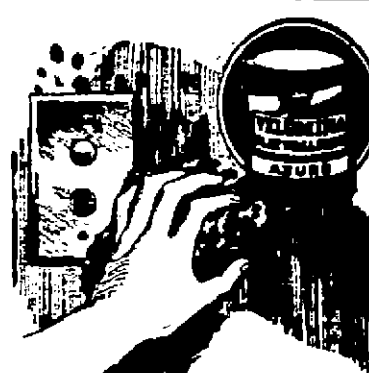

Paris—Latest official figures are that in the second quarter of 1929 the excess of births over deaths was 8,416, compared with 22,001 for the corresponding period the previous year.

Washington—Uncle Sam has 180 tons of money he has been unable to get rid of. A pile of old-style bills, the large one, is awaiting action by a mangle and incinerator working at top speed.

New York—Silvia Paatalainen, who had visions of returning to Sweden rich, is back working for Mrs. Henry Clay Frick as washerwoman. Her winnings at stocks ran up to $25,000 on paper, then vanished when a break came.

Kokura, Japan—Among the duties of two artillery regiments here is trying to make rain. During a prolonged drought peasants appealed to the army for aid. Twelve six-inch guns were dragged to the top of a mountain dedicated to the god of war. Sixty rounds were fired daily at the sky for six days. The drought continued.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—Renewal of selling pressure against the public utilities and some of the industrial leaders temporarily unsettled today's stock market, but the decline was checked by the resumption of large scale buying operations in the railroad shares. Early selling was based primarily on the speculative belief that the market, which had recovered more than half the ground lost in the decline early this month, was due for a secondary reaction.

Call money renewed at 5 percent but advanced to 7 in reflection of heavy mid-month demands, and the withdrawal of government funds on deposit in Federal Reserve member banks. Time money also displayed a slightly firmer undertone. Western Union recovered all of its early loss of 5 points in the early afternoon rally and John Masville quickly made up 7 points of its 5-point morning decline. United States Steel common dropped from an early high of 22 1/2 to 22 1/4, and then rebounded as Wall Street began to hear rumors of a special distribution to shareholders before the end of the year.

New Haven common assumed the leadership of the railroad group by moving up 3 points to a new high record at 133 1/4. The Preferred advanced 3 1/2 points to a new high at 134 1/4. New York Central, Avon, Baltimore and Ohio, Norfolk and Western and Northern Pacific sold 2 to 3 1/4 points higher. Timken Roller Bearing ran up 7 1/2 points to a new high at 135 on buying influenced by the recent expansion of the company's business into new fields, particularly railroad equipment. National Biscuit, Simmons, Industrial Rayon and Hershey Chocolate also were well bought.

Missionary Union Classis of Ulster

(Official Report)

The Women's Missionary Union of the Classis of Ulster was favored with a beautiful day for its meeting October 11, in the Reformed Church of High Falls.

The acting president, Mrs. Bedford, not being well enough to preside, the vice-president, Mrs. Van Tol, filled the chair very acceptably.

The Rev. Victor Simons and the Rev. Ben Scholten exchanged places on the program and after the hymn, Mr. Simons read the fourth chapter of Second Corinthians, and followed with a comprehensive prayer.

The committees were appointed and a very earnest welcome was given by Miss Jessie Snyder, who urged a large attendance of young women at our next meeting. With pleasing words and manner, the response was given by Mrs. Benjamin Emerick.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were accepted. Miss Howson of the W. B. F. M., gave the first address. Last year she visited our Kentucky field and she described her journey, the rides over rough roads, her warm welcome, and the hospitality at Annville where she occupied the guest room in the girls' dormitory. She reported the girls as good cooks, workers and students. Tow-headed, brown-eyed, rosy-cheeked, two hundred of them, march to chapel for morning devotions to the beating of two drums—a pleasing sight. On Sunday Miss Howson attended four services and was pleased with the ease and naturalness of the young people of the C. E. Society, the meeting being well attended and supported. The interest of that meeting was centered upon Ferris Seminary in Japan.

Miss Howson noted changes, such as the bettering of roads, the dam, the modernly equipped laundry, and the residing in one of the halls of the farm manager and his wife, to make a home center for the boys.

The greatest changes now are at Grew Hawk, where a doctor, nurse, and a minister and his wife are installed.

She could not say too much in praise of the workers. The teachers are first-class, consecrated and happy. The work is thrilling and has a wide and good reputation.

Christian education is the solution for the mountain people and is evolving strong young men and women for leadership. They want to be taught the fuller life. More money for scholarships is the present need.

A hymn, then an address by Miss Cobb, who brought the greetings of the W. B. F. M. She had recently visited our western societies and said we, the audience, are a part of a great body of women who are "publishing good tidings." The western women have been great readers of missionary and devotional books the past year. One, a mother of nine children, read forty. Miss Cobb urged the use of Mrs. Chamberlain's book, calling it her legacy to the church, and of the books concerning the great conference at Jerusalem.

She spoke of the proposed pentecostal celebration of 1930, wishing all might be "endued with power" and have an attitude of expectation as to the fulfillment of the promise. She wanted us to realize the fellowship of Christian women all around the world, to realize it each morning, using a prayer leaflet that later will be in the hands of the Christian women of every nation.

She said the two Boards "are embracing the whole world." She pleaded that first we seek to know Jesus better, second, that we pray for the awakening of the church, third, that we witness by word and life, hoping that in the name of Jesus the church shall be reborn.

A hymn, and the benediction by the Rev. P. Goertz closed the session.

A bountiful lunch was served by the ladies of the church, assisted by the Allgerville ladies.

The afternoon session began with a hymn and a period of prayer. The Rev. Ben Scholten, leader, the Arthur Church reported for the visitors' committee and a letter from Mrs. Kuyper to the Union was read.

Mrs. J. E. Graham of the W. B. D. M. began her address with a beautiful tribute to Mrs. Taber Knox, who on October 5, was suddenly called to her rest. Mrs. Graham asked all to rise and sing one verse of the hymn, "For all the saints who from their labor rest" and she followed with a touching prayer.

Mrs. Graham has spent three months visiting western conferences and our Indian Missions. She told of the great interest in the conferences. At one a thousand women were present, some having driven one hundred or two hundred and fifty miles to attend. Sessions were held morning, afternoon and evening. The women read and study much about missions and are happy to have their sons and daughters become missionaries. In many of the families at each meal, scripture is read and prayer offered. She told of many unbroken communities in a Ford car. Mrs. Graham visited the mission at Dulce, New Mexico.

Our work for Indians covers about thirty-five years.

There are still 30,000 Indians in the United States and Mexico with no missions for them. She said Dr. Ida Scudder, visiting among the Winnebagoes, said there was more degradation there than in India. The loathsome Indian dances end in vile drinking revels. A mission community show great contrast to those unreached. Lives are transformed by the Gospel.

During the offertory, "Tell It Again", a solo, was effectively sung by Mrs. Ruth LeFevre and the Rev. H. I. Todd offered the prayer. The offering was $35.44. Miss Van Doren, the last speaker, said it was difficult to tell the truth about India because it is so big, so constantly changing and its people so different in different parts. Goodness and villainess are not geographical. She said Miss Mayo's book has been answered by four writers in India, who virtually say as the Irishman did to one who vituperated him, "All those things you say I is, you is." We would not like America judged by some of its communities or people. India knows all the evils of the western nations. Wonderful things are taking place there. One of the greatest is the great advancement of women. Through their efforts a law has been passed forbidding the marriage of girls under fourteen. Purdah is being set aside and women are even entering politics and judicial circles. Missionaries now work with, rather than for, the people and Christian education is molding the women in their thinking.

After a hymn the place committee reported the Fair Street Church of Kingston as the place of the spring meeting. The nominating committee will report then. Mrs. Neander read the resolutions, which included the gratitude of all to the speakers and all who had shared in the program, also an appreciation of the fine hospitality of the ladies of the church and a tender reference to the passing away of Mrs. Knox, so well known and loved among us. The resolution relating to her is to be sent to The Intelligencer.

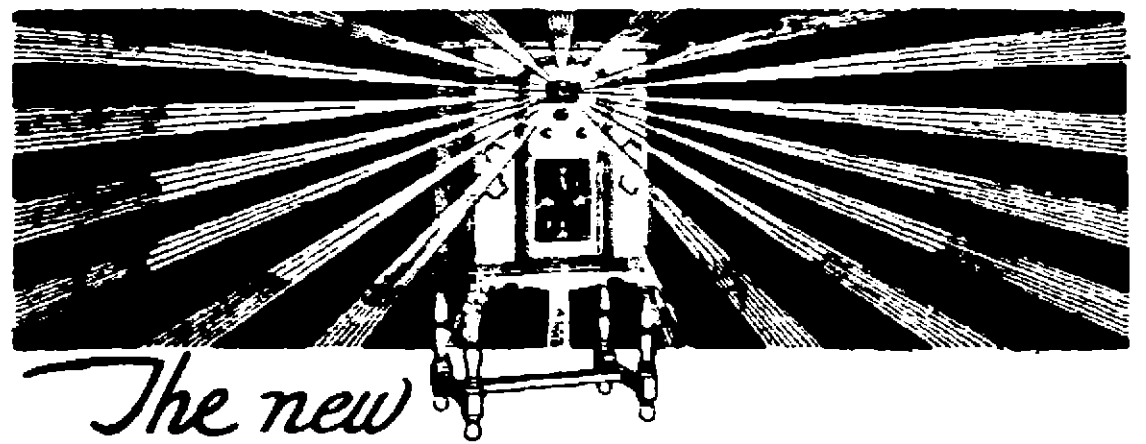

After a hymn the conference was dismissed with prayer and the benediction by the Rev. John Steketee.

May the inspiration of this conference be lasting and give great impetus to the work of missions in all our societies and churches.

ANNA SEARLE,
Corresponding Secretary.

Athletics Stage Rally In Ninth and Win Series

Haas Hits Homer With Bishop on Base to Tie Score, Then Miller Doubles With Foxx on Base to Win Game and Series—Walberg Invincible—Malone Deserved Better Fate.

(By Brian Bell, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Philadelphia, Oct. 15 (AP).—The Athletics of Philadelphia today are champions of the baseball world, thanks to a rally that roared the Chicago Cubs at the 59th minute of the 11th hour.

With President Hoover an interested spectator the White Elephants of Connie Mack rose in their might in the sixth inning of the fifth game to stage a comeback without parallel in world's series history.

Only two outs stood between the American Leaguers and a defeat that would have entailed a continuation of the series in Chicago with the result in the lap of the baseball gods, when the storm broke.

Trailing 2 to 0 with one out in the final inning, it seemed that only a baseball miracle could give the veteran Cornelius McGillicuddy his undisputed place at the head of the baseball procession of all time, as the only man to win four world's series.

One was out and nothing had happened. Now but two Athletics had to be retired to give the batter shouldered Pat Malone, who had permitted but two hits in eight and one out, a humiliating reverse he suffered at home in the second game of the series.

The outs were never made. One was. One never will be. Bishop, an earnest, cotton-topped lead-off man, whose specialty is getting the pitcher in a three and two hole, came up after Walby French, former football star, had taken the sensational Babe Ruth's place and fanned ignominiously. A few faint hearted fans turned toward the gate.

The bulk of the crowd of 30,000 remained. They recalled that 45 hours before the thundering herd of elephants had wiped out an eight-run lead and forged on to victory in a single inning. There was but two-thirds of an inning left but the lead was two instead of eight. They awaited developments. They came.

Malone got a strike and a ball on the patient Bishop and then another strike when a foul rattled among the hopeful but not enthusiastic spectators. Malone made the next pitch far too good. It was over the outside corner of the plate and Bishop, a left-handed batsman, drove it a foot inside the third base foul line for a single.

Haas Hits Home Run. Mule Haas, the same lean chap who cooperated with the sun and Hack Wilson in manufacturing a home run good for three runs in Saturday's game came up. There was nothing to wait for and Haas swung viciously at the first pitch, a high, inside fast ball.

The ball traveled high and far to right field, clearing the fence above the pathetic figure of Kiki Cuyler, who went as far as he could in a mad dash for the ball, ever gaining altitude as it went away from there. With that ball went the ball game. The score was only tied, but the Athletics were in their stride after an afternoon of important hitting efforts.

Mike Cochrane tried hard but his smash went straight to Hornsby and the Rajah tossed it to Grimm for the second out of the inning. The faltering Malone seemed himself again. Captain Charlie Grimm danced about first base, pounding his glove and holding up a reassuring finger to the pitcher to indicate that one more out would be easy. It was not.

Simmons, bearing the responsibility of keeping the A's in the ball game, let a ball go by and then crashed into the next to drive it against the scoreboard in right center. The Milwaukee mauler stopped at second. At another stage of the game he might have continued to utilize his superb, left-handed skill solely in emergencies.

Records Broken.

The series, one of the most sensational of all time, broke a score of records. A dozen in one game. The A's off in front at Chicago, by winning the first two games, lost the first one played in Philadelphia and then came from behind, as no team ever has done in a world's series, to win the next two.

Mack did not fail to be generous in his summing up. "We outplayed the Cubs," he said, "but we also outthought them." He paid tribute to the defeated National Leaguers, as a "great club."

The Cubs, from Manager McCarthy to the last boy, were philosophical.

"It's baseball," they said, after they had seen their castle of hopes crumble to pieces about them.

24 Records Broken or Tied

Philadelphia, Oct. 15 (AP).—Despite the absence of Babe Ruth and his big bludgeon from the world series trail this fall, twenty-four records were broken or tied in the clash between the Athletics and the Cubs.

Most of these went down when the Mackmen started their record rally for ten runs in the seventh inning last Saturday to overcome an eight-run Chicago lead and pull the decision from the fire by 10 to 8.

Howard Ehmke, the clogged right hander, smashed the twenty-six year old mark of Ed Walsh of the White Sox by fanning thirteen Cubs in the opening clash at Chicago. Walsh struck out twelve members of the same team in the Chicago-Lititz-City world series of 1906.

Ehmke was admirably helped up by Mickey Cochrane, star catcher of the Mackmen, and Mickey thus stepped into several new fielding records. He broke the record for putouts with fourteen in the first game and added an assist to top the mark for chances accepted.

Earnshaw and Grove came back with thirteen strikeouts between them in the second game. Cochrane tied his own putout mark, and had a running start toward a new total putout mark for the series, which he set at 52. He added two assists to end the record for total chances accepted to 61.

The Cubs set a new mark for strikeouts with 50, registering 26 of them in the first two games.

Connie Mack set a new mark for world series managers to shoot at by winning his fourth title. He also set a new mark against the experts and the inepters by fooling them five times in a row on his starting pitcher.

Harry A. Mackey, mayor of Philadelphia, had deserted the presidential box to hug Haas after his home run. He had no chance to give an encore to Miller. This reception committee was composed exclusively of players. Connie Mack, safely established even more securely in baseball's hall of fame, which seems to be painting the lily, retained enough composure to shake hands with Miller and Haas, one hand to each, and then to grab the smiling Babe Ruth, the rescue pitcher, with both. The big left-handed Walberg, with a sweeping curve that has had few equals in a world's series game, went to the rescue of Howard Ehmke in the fourth inning, with two runs in, and stopped the scoring. The southpaw permitted the Cubs to attack his delivery for only two hits and no runs.

Ehmke, who won the first game of the series in impressive style, did not have his "stuff" six days later. He fell after two were out in the fourth. Cuyler's double started it. He worked too carefully on Stephenson and passed him. Grimm drove Cuyler home with a single and Taylor's hit to center sent Stephenson in. Walberg rushed in to force Malone to miss a big curve for a third strike.

Connie Mack explained that he had pitched Ehmke because "Howard was anxious to pitch and when he is anxious to pitch, I am anxious to have him pitch." It was one of the few Mackian hunches to go wrong in the series, but the result was satisfactory to the Athletics' family.

Manager Mack also explained that Bob Grove, whose great relief pitching stamped him as one of the heroes of the classic, was "ailing" and in addition suffered throughout from a sore finger, making it necessary to utilize his superb, left-handed skill solely in emergencies.

Records Broken.

The series, one of the most sensational of all time, broke a score of records. A dozen in one game. The A's off in front at Chicago, by winning the first two games, lost the first one played in Philadelphia and then came from behind, as no team ever has done in a world's series, to win the next two.

Mack did not fail to be generous in his summing up. "We outplayed the Cubs," he said, "but we also outthought them." He paid tribute to the defeated National Leaguers, as a "great club."

The Cubs, from Manager McCarthy to the last boy, were philosophical.

"It's baseball," they said, after they had seen their castle of hopes crumble to pieces about them.

24 Records Broken or Tied

Philadelphia, Oct. 15 (AP).—Despite the absence of Babe Ruth and his big bludgeon from the world series trail this fall, twenty-four records were broken or tied in the clash between the Athletics and the Cubs.

Most of these went down when the Mackmen started their record rally for ten runs in the seventh inning last Saturday to overcome an eight-run Chicago lead and pull the decision from the fire by 10 to 8.

Howard Ehmke, the clogged right hander, smashed the twenty-six year old mark of Ed Walsh of the White Sox by fanning thirteen Cubs in the opening clash at Chicago. Walsh struck out twelve members of the same team in the Chicago-Lititz-City world series of 1906.

Ehmke was admirably helped up by Mickey Cochrane, star catcher of the Mackmen, and Mickey thus stepped into several new fielding records. He broke the record for putouts with fourteen in the first game and added an assist to top the mark for chances accepted.

Earnshaw and Grove came back with thirteen strikeouts between them in the second game. Cochrane tied his own putout mark, and had a running start toward a new total putout mark for the series, which he set at 52. He added two assists to end the record for total chances accepted to 61.

The Cubs set a new mark for strikeouts with 50, registering 26 of them in the first two games.

Connie Mack set a new mark for world series managers to shoot at by winning his fourth title. He also set a new mark against the experts and the inepters by fooling them five times in a row on his starting pitcher.

Harry A. Mackey, mayor of Philadelphia, had deserted the presidential box to hug Haas after his home run. He had no chance to give an encore to Miller. This reception committee was composed exclusively of players.
